OUR CLASS OF '24

Gone—The days are gone forever,
Our school days faded by,
Oh! that we might spend them o'er again
And for much better work try.

Forbear—Enough of this my friends,
Those days will ne'er repeat
Except in mind where we all find
That memories never sleep.

Our teachers we can ne'er forget,
The commanders of our ship,
And when the tide went out to sea
Held us fast that we did not slip.

The school-house with its eight big rooms,
In each we've spent some years,
Incidents in each we recollect
That bring out held back tears.

In the rooms we'd congregate,
Many friendships we thus formed,
Friendships only death can break,
In friendships true that's born.

The peal of the dear old school-house bell,
How the memory seems to thrill,
With the spirit of Old Ashley High
As its tone comes o'er the hill.

Now we're leaving as a Class,
Never more to recite together,
But, classmates, we will never part,
In God we will meet forever.

—REX OBERLIN, '24.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

On September 13, 1920, the curtain rose, revealing a class of twenty-three Freshmen on the stage, eager to act in the drama of four years of high school life. Never before in the history of the Ashley High School had there been such a large class as the Class of '24.

Feeling that we were well on our way to success, we issued forth from our first class meeting with Edna Morr bearing our banner as president, her assistants being Rex Oberlin, vice-president, and Harry Wilson, secretary and treasurer. Later we selected our class colors which were violet and gold.

During the term Roxie Liddy entered the class, and five members withdrew. One member, Clarence Penick, moved away, and four members—Lester Wolfe, Russel Hartman, Edna Sherwood and Orba Hamman—decided to discontinue their school work.

On April 22, 1921, the curtain fell, and the first act of that drama was past.

In the following September, we assembled again as Sophomores. Two new students—Willa Kunderd and Faye Neidig—joined our class at the opening of the second term, and Sarah Renner, one of the original number, went to Auburn to continue her high school course. Soon after the opening of the school term, Lester Hartman, another of the original number, was forced to discontinue his school work on account of ill health, and Everett Penick joined the class.

This term our class officers were: Harry Wilson, president; George Urey, vice-president; and Rex Oberlin, secretary and treasurer.

We had been successful in the first two acts of our great drama, but it was our desire to do greater things in the future. Two of our former members failed to return this year—Faye Neidig discontinuing her school work, and Berniece Hackenberger completing her high school course at Pleasant Lake. Five new students—Claude Kaysen, Amy Hecht, Harper Norman, William Turner, and Marjorie Knoder—having enrolled with our class, we thought we were prepared to prove ourselves more than equal to the tasks placed before us. During this term Edna Morr withdrew, continuing her school work in the Auburn High School.

Under the guidance of Willa Kunderd, our new class president, we were successful in all our class activities. Marjorie Knoder was elected vice-president, and George Urey, secretary and treasurer.

One of the most important events of the season was the Junior-Senior Reception, in the planning and promoting of which the energy and spirit, characteristic of the Class of '24, was shown.

At the beginning of the fourth act of this drama, three of the members of the class failed to return, Amy Hecht continuing her school work in the Kendallville High School, and Harper Norman and William Turner attending the Pleasant Lake High School. However, one new student, Howard Wagoner enrolled with the Senior Class.

As there was much work to be done, the class officers were elected soon after the school term had opened. With Claude Kaysen at the helm, we were sure to succeed. Marjorie Knoder was re-elected vice-president; Aldis Stuck, secretary and treasurer; Willa Kunderd, "Comet" editor-in-chief; and George Urey, "Comet" business manager.

During the past four years, our class has taken an active part in the athletic and literary activities of the high school. The Senior term has been, we believe, the most successful of the four terms for the Class of '24.

Twenty members have remained on the stage to the end of the fourth act, amid difficulties and pleasures. As the roll call is given they receive their diplomas, and the curtain falls forever on the "Class of '24."

MABEL WAGONER

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

"Helen dear, how are we going to spend the holidays this year?" inquired Mr. Sharitt of his wife, as they sat before the glowing hearth in their winter home near Concord, New Hampshire. "I have a fine idea," exclaimed Mrs. Sharitt, "Why can't we invite the members of the old class of '24 to spend their holidays in these wonderful mountains?" "Fine," replied Elbert, for whatever Helen wished was always granted her.

Yes, Mr. Sharitt is none other than our old classmate, Elbert. But he is now the sheik of sheiks in the movie world, and his devoted wife is our old friend Helen Ellert. It was always said that miracles would happen, and this is surely nothing less than a miracle.

"Elbert, you begin writing the invitations while I find the addresses of them all."

"There's Rex Oberlin who certainly is climbing the ladder of success in the business world. He has just recently been appointed General-Manager of the Ford Automobile Company. Although his business interests are in New York and Detroit, his heart is to be found in Chicago. No, he has not yet embarked upon the sea of matrimony, but Marjorie Knoder has finally decided to give up her career in instrumental music, by which art she has charmed millions of listeners, and become the light of that happy man's life.

"I guess Aldis Stuck has at last mastered the art of pilot-ship, for he has become chief-of-pilots in the U. S. Areoplane Service. His dreams have certainly been realized.

"Say, Elbert, have you heard of the efficient police-woman department which has been organized in New York, under the control of Mabel Wagner, our old classmate? She has become the most remarkable police-woman in the United States. I have always predicted that she would become renowned in (law-enforcement?).

"Yes, Elbert, Everett Penick's home is in Washington, D. C., for the shy, backward youth of our school-days has become America's greatest orator. He chose for his subject, "The Benefits Derived From the Granting of Women Suffrage," and he becomes quite eloquent in his discourse.

"We must not forget Bessie Perkins, but as you probably know, she is now wife of Mr. Miller, that great football star. Her home is in Detroit, where she is quite the belle of society.

"Of course, we can invite Claude Kaysen, personally, as he always spends the winter at this resort. It is said that after the holidays he will sail for Europe, where he is to give concerts in the leading musical centers. Claude has certainly become master of the violin, for he has already won world wide recognition.

"There's Howard Wagner, who has made his home in our own town community. He has developed what is known as an ideal farm and his success has been used as an example in many communities.

"Elbert, do you still remember Fern? She certainly lived up to her name of 'Scattergood,' for they say she scatters good and happiness to all inmates in the greatest hospital in Chicago, of which she is matron.

"And do you realize that the Professor of Mathematics in Columbia University is Russell Perkins, one of the class of '24? When we think of how our class has prospered we should feel happy, indeed.

"When we remember what an efficient secretary and treasurer of '24 George Urey was, we do not wonder that he has become Secretary of State. But George declares that it is only through the guidance and companionship of his wife, whom we remember as our own smiling and cheerful classmate, Helen Deetz, that he has been successful. They have made their home in Indianapolis.

"Oh, Elbert, we surely must not forget our pal in work as in pleasure. For Harry Wilson, now of Boston, has become leading cartoonist for magazines and editorials in America, but we shall always remember him as our class pal.

"Esther Mansdorfer must not be forgotten, for we had always predicted an editorial position for her because of her ability to remember news. She is society editor for the big '400' of Chicago, and more scandals are brought to light day by day.

"Yes, Elbert, there is Clark McClish, whose ability in the line of science insures him a great career in the future. He is employed as science inspector of the Chicago Stockyards.

"Cecil Funk, you probably know, is the leading politician of the day. He is still waiting for the day when he will claim our old friend, Jo Wilson, for a life mate. We wish him all happiness and success in the future. He is studying law in Cambridge at the present time.

"Elbert, you may take me into town tomorrow and I shall personally invite the Misses Willa Kunderd, business manager, and Roxie Liddy, designer, of the Ladies Fashion Shop, called the 'Paris'."

All invitations were accepted and the guests arrived, happy in the reunion of the old class of '24. It proved to be a delightful holiday, and all rejoiced in the good fortune and health of the class members. Mr. and Mrs. Sharitt received thanks again and again for making it possible to gather and renew the old fellowship and acquaintance of the "Alma Mater."

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

One beautiful September morning in 1921, ten eager and energetic Freshmen assembled in the Ashley High School to begin their journey through the wilderness of High School. A few days later we again assembled together for the purpose of organizing our class. We selected our first president, Nellie Brand, our vice-president, Evelyn Conrad, and our secretary and treasurer, David Gramling. We, as Freshmen, soon considered ourselves a very important part of the high school, and the time passed so quickly that before we realized it, our Freshmen days were gone forever.

On another September morning about a year later seventeen Sophomores met in the high school. We had a larger class than we had before, but the increased number only seemed to make it a more lively and capable class. Again we met for the purpose of electing officers to guide us through our Sophomore days. Beatrice Howard became our president, Gladys Johnson, vice president, and Ralph Libey, our secretary and treasurer. While we were busy with our studies time flew, and vacation had soon arrived again.

Our journey as Juniors through the wilderness of High School has been even more exciting than the two preceding years. Our officers are: President, Evelyn Conrad; vice-president, George Brand; and secretary and treasurer, Edith Kirchner. We are only nine in number but we hope we make up in quality what we lack in number. As all jolly Juniors, we are eagerly looking forward to the time when we will become dignified Seniors.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

In the year one thousand, nine hundred and twenty-two, thirty-one green Freshmen joined the Ashley High School for the first time. They did not know what real study meant, but after a few weeks in their new place they had to get down to real work if they wanted to contend with Algebra, Latin, and English.

Some weeks after school started one of our members became dissatisfied and left, but we still had a good sized class.

We had our first exams at Christmas, but we were prepared and we met them half-way.

In the last half we were joined by three more members, bringing the number on the roll up to thirty-three.

At the last of the year most of the class passed with high honors.

In '23 about nineteen of last year's Freshmen came back for our second year. The decreasing of our number was due to the Hudson pupils who were transferred to Pleasant Lake High School.

Early in the year three of our members left us, due to various reasons. This left us with only sixteen members.

We did our best to keep up with the other classes in the school activities. We were quite successful. Two of our members won in the High School Contest.

We were sorry to lose another member of the Class, but some incidents can not be helped, so we finish our second year hoping that our next two years will be as successful as the two that have passed.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

The Freshman class assembled for the first time in Room D, on September 3, 1923. There were fifteen in all, eight blushing girls and seven bashful boys.

Since the beginning of the second semester one of our members has left us, making a membership of fourteen in the class.

We have endeavored to keep abreast of the other classes in recitations and outside activities. We have had a good representation on the Honor Roll, and almost half of the class entered the High School Contest. We also fared well in basket ball.

We have the best class in high school; if you don't believe it ask any Freshman.

FRESHMEN, '23

Now
 Rah! Rah! Ashley! Thus are we
 The Freshman Class of '23.
 We're not afraid of toil or care,
 The road we're on, we're well aware;
 Is filled with gibes and every joke
 That higher-ups down at us poke.

But
 Now this much we'd have them know,
 That all wise-ours from Freshmen grow.
 But for our Class as bottom round
 No topmost step would e'er be found.
 We shout exultantly and free
 For Freshman Class of '23!

And
 If in the process of our Class
 That any soul should fail to pass
 Because the grade was much too steep,

We'll have no time to sigh or weep,
 But onward, upward, still are we
 The Freshman Class of '23.

If
 We would cross the Rubicon,
 Explore the fields that lie beyond,
 Make darkest platitudes look plain,
 Turn Freshman sorrows into pain,
 The "midnight oil" we'll burn quite free.
 Then Rah! Rah! Freshmen '23.

So
 With flying colors we intend
 To rush the Sophs just 'round the bend,
 Their present camps we'll soon preempt,
 Hold future Freshies in contempt.
 Now altogether, full and free,
 Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah! Freshmen '23!

—DORIS SHARITT.

SOPHOMORES

We're the Sophomore Class of '24,
 We've been called "Silly" by dozens—
 yes, more,
 But, friends, are we really the name
 they imply?
 Don't you know we are jolly? We surely do dry.

We are all boosters for the Old A. H. S.
 They ask us to help and we always say
 "Yes,"

There are programs and playlettes and singing and all,
 But you never have yet seen a Sophomore fall.

Of all our ambitions our highest has now
 Been raised to the standard and ready for bow,
 We're waiting and working and hoping that we

 In two more years dignified SENIORS will be.

The faculty all have been splendid to us,
 There is not one reason why we should fuss,
 We hope we are working that we may some day
 Repay their kindness in the most correct way.

Now, friends, watch the Sophomores, see them at work,
 For never was a Sophomore known to shirk,
 We're seeking the goal of our standard
 close by,
 When we shall be graduates of Old Ashley High.

—ENID MONTGOMERY.

A SOPHOMORE'S DAY DREAM

"Pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat," said the rain, which beat steadily upon the window panes. Heavy black clouds seemed to touch the horizon; all nature seemed to have a drowsy appearance.

Richard Carmen, a noble sophomore—as all sophomores are—was sitting in the study room of the Pleasant Vale High School making an exceedingly great effort to solve a problem in geometry, but he was greatly inclined to make up some lost sleep.

"If three lines intersect," he said repeatedly to himself, but that was as far as he got, for at last the sandman forced him to give up to his weaker nature, and he was soon in the wonderful land of dreams.

Slowly but surely the scene in his brain changed, the problem in geometry faded into the background, and he found himself in a changed world—the land of his future and his ambitions.

The long, weary, tedious, but yet happy days of school were over and Richard, with long sturdy strides, stepped into the world of ambition, hope and success, a graduate of Pleasant Vale High School.

Among the influential citizens of the United States, who attended the closing exercises of Pleasant Vale High, was the noted Andy Gump. Richard, having received the highest honors awarded the students, was congratulated by the many wealthy visitors. Andy Gump was one of the first to offer his praises, and to show his appreciation for the noble work Richard had done, he offered him an excellent position as assistant manager in the "New Gump Consolidated Hair Brush and Mirror Company."

Richard, seeing the wonderful opportunity, seized it. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," he prophesied, so he returned to Chicago with Mr. Gump to start on his duties at once.

On reaching the new factory, the president himself showed Richard what his duties would be as assistant manager, which was indeed an unusual act for this worthy person to do.

Several weeks went by and Richard did not find his duties as light as he had anticipated, but nevertheless he did them so well that one day the president of the firm sent word to him that as he was doing such fine work as assistant manager, that he, the honorable Mr. Gump, thought it only fair that Richard should become manager. He was delighted because of the higher position and also the increase in his wages. He began to picture himself as president of the Consolidated Hair Brush and Mirror Company, instead of Andy Gump; he also pictured his old mother sitting in a beautiful mansion with a lovely silk dress on her bent form, ornaments in her snow white hair, and rings on her withered fingers. Would his dream ever come true he wondered; fate could but tell.

Time wore on and Richard proved himself a better manager than assistant, and he bid fair to become vice-president of the famous and rapidly growing firm. Every day he did something to make the bristles in the hair brush more substantial or the mirror brighter, and he advertised it in such a wonderful manner that orders came from all over the world. Indeed the demand became so great for this new invention, that more men had to be employed and the factory built larger.

Two years had passed since Richard entered the great door to opportunity, and he is now vice-president of the company. He has started to build a beautiful home in Chicago, and already his aged mother has several silk dresses.

One day Mr. Gump called Richard into his private office and said, "My boy, you have started from the bottom of the ladder and climbed upward, and now you are ready to approach the last step, for I am going to Congress, and you will become president."

"Ding-aling-aling," said the electric bell. The forty minute study period was over and Richard's classmates passed to their various classes, but Richard dreamed on. The professor passing the study room and seeing this noble sophomore sleeping soundly, tapped him on the shoulder and said, "Wake up, Richard, time for geometry class. Work while you work and play while you play."

Richard passed to his class, wishing deep in his boyish heart that he was still living in his wonderful land of dreams.

—JO WILSON, '26.

THE LEGEND OF THE PATCH-WORK QUILT

To a small child, life is one jolly game after another. To the debutante, it is a rose-colored dream. To the cynic, life is a huge joke; but to the high school student, life seems, at times, to be a serious and unsolved problem.

Some say high school life is a bubble, always light and care-free. But to us, it is a great patch-work quilt, made of our patches of sorrow and joy; those of regret and realization.

Starting in our Freshman year, we begin to sew in our pieces. We much prefer the bright colored pieces, the gay patches of pleasant companionship, happiness and joy, and here and there will appear an especially bright patch. Our entrance into the portals of high school or our graduation.

Here and there we find sullen brown patches of ill-temper and misdeemeanor. Too bad that they must be sown in, but there will never be more of these, we say.

Even black patches are to be seen, black patches of some grief or sorrow of a classmate or friend. We do not want these dark patches in our quilt, but with tears, sighs of reluctance, and oft-prickt fingers, we sew them in because we must.

Sometimes we make a whole square of brightly colored pieces—those delightful hours when duties are neglected and lessons forgotten. Then on the morrow, after serious reflection, we begin to sew in somber gray pieces to finish the square—the gray realization of what we were capable of doing and what we left undone.

There are crazy quilts too, in our high school life. We make them when we live only for the moment, live a happy, carefree life of which we soon tire—when we think nothing of our goal, graduation, and our thoughts are only for the pleasures of today.

Many of us, as we progress through high school, allow our life-quilt to become machine-made and we forget to be proud of its pattern. We allow our lives to become modeled and fashioned after the lives of friends or companions. These models are oftentimes cut and fashioned in a poor haphazard manner, fashioned to please only the present age. Then to our surprise and dismay, we find our quilt being pieced together in the same reckless way.

At the close of our high school life, we find, to our sorrow and regret, that our life designs are fashioned for us in the exact image and color of ten thousand other quilts.

MERELY CROSS-EYED

"I would like to practice on the team," a small voice squeaked out.

The coach whirled around to see what sort of an animal could make such a queer racket. But low and behold, it was a mere boy. He was short, thin, and stooped, and he had watery blue eyes and light hair.

"You," the coach thundered, "why, you couldn't play basket ball." He more than chuckled at the idea.

"I should like to try," said the kid with such a wistful look that the coach decided in his mind to try him till the two boys whom he was expecting came. So the coach went in as guard and he put James, or in other words, the Kid, in as forward.

The coach received one of the greatest shocks in his life, for the Kid could dribble the ball from one end of the floor to the other without having his play broken up. If the boys expected him to shoot in one direction he invariably shot the other way. If they expected him to dribble in one direction he was sure to dribble the other way. Indeed, it was a queer affair. The more the coach shouted warnings and advice the more tangled-up it became. Finally the coach shouted, "Time out."

"Where in the thunder did you learn to play basket ball?" asked the coach.

"In High School, sir," the Kid replied. He was more than half frightened, for the coach seemed to be angry to think he could get the ball in the basket.

"In High School! Well, we'll try it over."

But the same thing came about. James certainly could play basket ball, although he was small enough to be a mascot.

No one seemed to understand. He could, without any question, get the ball in the right hands at the right minute.

"I'll tell you how it is," the coach was talking to his assistant. "he don't look at the place where he throws the ball."

"Well, that is true, but some way or other, he surely has the boys bluffed."

"I know it and we can use him on our team to a fine advantage at our next game."

The night for the game finally arrived and everyone was in a nervous uproar.

The coach's last warning was "Boys, you must win!"

From the first James had the opposing players fooled. For he did not do what they expected him to do.

The first half was over and the score was four to six, in favor of the home team. The boys were tired, there was no mistake about that.

"I'll tell you, boys, if you keep this up you will have them beat to a frazzle, by the time the game is over," the coach cried.

The boys went on again. In some way the back guard landed on James' back and sent him to the floor.

James was taken out of the game and a sub was put in his place. He gazed up in the coach's face, with the same wistful look.

"I'm sorry I couldn't stick it out."

The coach looked at him in open mouthed astonishment.

JAMES WAS CROSS-EYED!

THE WAY OF THE HEART LEADS HOME

It was evening in San Francisco. The sun was disappearing behind the horizon and the long golden rays shone far up into the sky. A few last rays found their way over the Golden Gate, mingling with the clear blue of the water with gold. The waves danced about, making the harbor look like a sea of gold, dotted here and there with red from the clouds.

Just as the last rays went westward, a large stately ocean liner, the Comet, commanded by Captain J. E. Briggs, steamed into the harbor. Many passengers disembarked, and among them could be seen a tall handsome youth, with sun-burned face and an easy gait, acquired by one who had lived in the country. Evidently this was a country lad who had left his cozy cheerful home, his gray-haired mother and all things that youth holds dear, to make his fortune in the city.

James Nelson, a lad twenty-one years of age, had spent most of his life on a farm in Westland, a town on the western coast of Canada. He had been contented to care for the farm for his aged father and mother and to help support the younger children, but after his twenty-first birthday he had wanted to leave the home nest, to go to some city to seek fame and fortune.

Now as he stood on the pier at San Francisco, strange misgivings came over him. He had wanted so much to come to the city, with its bright lights, its whirl of traffic and never-dying amusements, that to make it possible for him to do so his parents had mortgaged the old home. He had thought at the time it was out of love that they had done this, but now as he stood here thinking, the bright lights of the city twinkling wickedly and luring him on, he realized that he had been very selfish.

He wended his way through the throng to a cheap lodging house, and was soon situated for the night.

The next day, he went out in search of employment. All day long he searched but to no avail. At length, tired and sad at heart, he returned to his room.

All the next day he searched for a position and at last found employment in a factory for eight hours a day and low wages, but he accepted it.

He had been in San Francisco about five months—working and putting his whole heart into it, when one day he received a letter from home making him all the more homesick. He read:

"Dear Jim:—Everyone here is well and we hope you are the same. But son, Judge White has been very severe on us and says our mortgage is due next month and that he will not extend it. What is worse we have no money to pay it.

"Please don't worry, though. We'll manage somehow.

"Love, from Mother and Dad."

This was too much for Jim. All the time that he had been in the city his heart had longed for the old place again, but he dared not tell his mother and father because he had come to San Francisco with the hopes of growing famous and perhaps rich. This had been his highest ambition and to have it blasted would break his heart, but he could stay no longer.

He packed his few belongings and was soon sailing homeward.

He reached home a few days later in the evening, just as the sun was sinking in the West. How beautiful everything looked! There was the "old swimmin' hole," the sun reflecting golden lights on the water. The ivy and rose bushes creeping around the door took a rosy tint and were all the more beautiful. He rushed into the house. By the fireplace sat his mother looking sad and lonely. "Mother!" he cried.

"Jim!" exclaimed his mother. "Jim! my son! I knew you would not desert us in our hour of need. You have come to stay?"

"Yes, mother to stay," he answered.

The next day he started to work on the farm once more. The horses seemed to know him and would rub their noses against his arms. All the animals of the barnyard seemed to be glad to see him.

Each morning he arose with a song on his lips and a deeper song in his heart.

The Judge had extended the mortgage and Jim was able to pay it when due.

"After all, mother, there is no place like home," he said.

This year our team started out with the determination to accomplish more than we had heretofore. The two preceding years of our basket ball experience did not, to be sure, bring many victories to our high school, but we were only beginners. With a new hall being erected, we girls put forth our efforts to bring victory to Ashley High.

Our first game on October 19, at Waterloo, did not prove as successful as we had hoped for; the score being 18 to 15 in Waterloo's favor. But this defeat only served to spur us on.

On November 16 we went to Hamilton with the determination to win. Margaret Hoover, our forward, was injured during the first half, but with Willa Kunderd in her place we came home victorious, the score standing 7 to 2.

On Friday night we met Spencerville on their own floor. Luck seemed to be against us in our shooting but our guards held the Spencerville score close and when the whistle blew the score stood 2 to 3 in our favor.

Our next game, the following week at LaGrange, numbered our second defeat. Although the game was exciting throughout, the score was 18 to 11.

On December 21, we played at Fremont. We started the scoring but with our best fighting, Fremont came out ahead, with 19 to 7 as the score.

On January 16, we played our first game on the new floor, with Waterloo. Waterloo seemed confident and even believed that they would strike us off the map. But I think they were a bit fooled. The game was fast and exciting, ending in Waterloo's victory 5 to 6.

The next week Hamilton returned their game. They came determined to make our counts 50-50, but we held our own and defeated them the second time this season. The score was 9 to 6.

Following the tournament, Butler met us for the first time this year on our floor. The game started rather slow with Butler in the lead at the half. But we found our speed, scoring 18 points in the last 10 minutes, making the score 9 to 20 for A. H. S.

The next evening we were scheduled to meet Garrett. Only about half of the team got there, and with some shifting and placing of the players present, we managed to put in our appearance. There we suffered the worst defeat of the season. The final score was 52 to 2.

On Thursday night LaGrange came to play their return game. At the end of the half LaGrange was only one point ahead. At the close of the game the score was 11 to 35 for LaGrange.

The following night we encountered the Angola team at home. Both teams experienced bad luck in scoring but the game was exciting and the teams were pretty well matched. The score was 5 to 3 for Angola.

On next Friday night Spencerville came to Ashley. The game was very interesting throughout, the score being 17 to 3 for Ashley.

A game was scheduled with Butler for the following Wednesday night, but Butler, being unable to play, forfeited the game, giving us the score of 2 to 0.

We played the last game of the season with the grade team. This game proved enjoyable. The score was 10 to 22 in favor of the high school. We wish to compliment the grades on the good fight they put up and we wish them much success in the future.

Although our team had hoped for better success, we won half of the games we played. We hope that next year the teams will be more successful with the advantages of our new hall, and that they will do their best for our Old Ashley High.

This year's high school team started with the hopes of a successful journey in the basket ball world, but the hopes proved to be of short duration. The Ashley quintette suffered much at the first of the year for the lack of a good practice floor, and it was not until in January that the new floor was finished. We also lost a good forward after the first few games.

The first game on October nineteenth, was played at Waterloo, where we were victorious, the score being thirteen and twelve.

The next game on November sixteenth, was fought at Hamilton. We were defeated after a hard battle, the score was eighteen and twenty-eight.

The following Friday we met Spencerville on their floor, and luck being with us, showed them a fine game, which resulted in victory for us. The record showed thirteen and twelve.

The next week we faced Wolfe Lake on their floor, but their being on home ground proved to be our defeat. The score was forty-three and one. Our forward Perkins starred.

The next battle ground was at LaGrange where we met one of the largest teams in the surrounding country. We were defeated by thirty-six to eleven.

The next game played was at Fremont on December twenty-first, where we again suffered defeat at the rate of thirty-three to eight.

The following Friday we journeyed to Howe, where we were at a great disadvantage as we had had no place to practice for over two weeks. The score was twenty-one to three in Howe's favor.

The next game was played on January sixteenth with Waterloo. It was the first game on our new floor, but when the final whistle blew the score was eighteen to thirteen in their favor.

The following game was with Columbia City on their own floor. This was one of the biggest games on our schedule, as Columbia City is considered one of the best teams in their district. We were defeated thirty-nine to thirteen.

Then we received Hamilton for their return game with us. It was a close and very exciting game all the way through, and it was not until the last moment that one of Hamilton's players dropped a long one; making the score eighteen to sixteen in their favor.

The first game after the county tournament was played with Butler on our floor. This proved to be a very interesting game throughout both halves. The final score was twenty to fifteen in their favor.

The next night we played at Garrett, where we were again defeated. After having played a hard game, the records showed thirty to seven.

The following Friday LaGrange played their return game with us, but their size put us to a great disadvantage. Even though we were on our own floor, the ending score was forty-nine to twenty.

The next night we played Angola. This was our first game with them and was played on our floor. In the first half we held them down quite well, but in the second half we lost our speed, and the game ended in our defeat with a score of thirty to nine.

The next week we played Spencerville on our floor. This was a good game, for we had defeated them by one point in a game at the first of the year. This time there was no doubt as to the victor, for the score was nineteen to twenty-nine in our favor.

Our last game before the tournament was played with Butler on their floor. This game was hard fought by both teams throughout the entire game. We lost by a score of thirty to twenty-eight.

There were two tournaments this year. February first and second the county tournament was held at Butler, where we met Auburn and were defeated.

In the district tournament we fared much better. We played the first game of the tournament with Orland and defeated them eight to nine. The next day of the tournament we met Salem, where we were again victorious. The score was nine and twelve. We met Angola the same day and even though we played hard we were defeated twenty-five to seven.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

On the twenty-fifth of September the girls of Ashley High met to re-organize the Girls' Athletic Association. The membership was larger than ever before. The officers elected for the year were as follows:

|                       |                     |
|-----------------------|---------------------|
| Willa Kunderd .....   | President           |
| Marjorie Knoder ..... | Vice-President      |
| Doris Sharitt .....   | Secretary-Treasurer |

Three years ago the high school girls had organized the association for the purpose of promoting athletics among the girls. In the past they have been handicapped in not having any building to use for indoor sports, but, since the erection of the new Community Hall it is expected that every girl will be able to participate in some form of athletics in the future.

Basket ball seemed to be the girl's favorite sport this year. A good number of girls reported for practice, and there was keen competition for places on the team. Although the girls were rather discouraged at the first of the year through the lack of a place in which to practice regularly, they made a good record. At the end of the season they had won seven games and lost the same number. The material for next year is very promising and everyone expects the team to gain revenge for some of the defeats of this year.

—WILLA KUNDERD.

BOYS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

On October 15, 1923, the Ashley Boys Athletic Association met in the laboratory of the high school. Mr. Frererick presided over the first meeting and the boys elected the officers. Harry Wilson was chosen president, and Donald Whittig business manager. After Donald left school Herman Kaysen was elected to take his place.

On Halloween night, the Athletic Associations of the school gave a carnival. It was a grand success and everyone enjoyed it very much.

On October the seventeenth the basket ball suits were handed out. Later in the season the association bought some sweat shirts for the players. Throughout the season three basket balls, one set of basket ball nets and some medical supplies were bought for the team.

Before the boys could practice in the town hall, the association rented the Catholic gym. In January the hall was ready to use.

Through the good support of the town at the different athletic activities and through the good reputation of the athletic teams, the association was a great success.

THE SCHOOL EXHIBIT

On Friday, April 11, 1924, the annual school exhibit was held in the Community Hall.

Each room in the grammar school and each division: as, the history, English, mathematics, etc., in the high school, exhibited school work. The exhibitions were made in booths, each separate division having its own booth.

The first room exhibited booklets, decorations, and penmanship and spelling. The second room had booklets and posters. The third and fourth rooms' exhibits consisted of posters, maps, and booklets.

The English classes made very interesting booklets, having for their subjects noted authors in literature.

The history work consisted of posters on topics of general interest, and booklets on various subjects.

The biology class exhibited their notebooks besides books and posters. The physics exhibit was along the same line.

The Home Economics classes showed the sewing which they have done in this year's work. They also exhibited proofs of their ability to cook.

The physical geography class had their notebooks and maps of Indiana, showing the state roads and other points of interest, while the art exhibit consisted of drawings and paintings.

The object of the annual exhibit is to give the parents and other people in the community an opportunity to see the work of the students.

THE JUNIOR-SENIOR RECEPTION

On Friday evening May 16, 1924, about fifty Juniors, Seniors, and faculty members assembled in the K. of P. all to enjoy the reception which the Juniors had prepared. The hall was artistically decorated in lavender and gold, the colors of the Senior Class.

At 8:00 o'clock the program was opened by an address by Evelyn Conrad, president of the Junior Class. The remainder of the program consisted of musical numbers, readings, a speech by County Superintendent Green, and a very interesting paper on "A Junior's Foresight Into the Future," which was presented by George Brand.

About 10:00 o'clock a banquet was served, the guests being entertained between courses by a faculty toast by Harry Wilson and a Junior-Senior toast by Principal Fred Frederick.

After the banquet all participated in the playing of games until it was deemed time to say farewell.

HIGH SCHOOL LITERARY AND ORATION CONTEST

The local elimination contest was held in the M. E. Church, Wednesday evening, March 12, 1924. A large crowd assembled to see their favorite win, and both sad and happy faces were to be seen as the program proceeded.

The students who entered the contest deserve much credit, for it took hours of toilsome labor outside of school, for them to prepare their parts in it.

The program was highly enjoyed by all, and everybody went home, well satisfied, apparently, with the decisions of the judges.

Property of Smithfield Township

The program was opened by the piano solos by Herman and Gladys. These were very well given and they pleased the audience immensely. In deciding the winner, the judges had a hard time but they finally decided on Herman.

Next came the readings by the girls. These were among the best numbers on the program and they were, without a doubt, presented better than any other part. Roxie's and Enid's selections were of a very tender and pathetic nature. Doris' of a patriotic gentleman, commonly called "the savior of our country," and Georgia's reading was the story of a pretty Japanese maiden. Roxie won the reading.

Three girls now presented the solos. These were very appropriate and pretty, and were very well sung, especially as the girls were all young.

It looks as though we will have some good material next year. Jo sang "Mother Machree" and she was declared winner.

The orations and discussions came next, and it was impossible for one to listen to the soul stirring orations on the Constitution or to the discussions on world peace without feeling very distinctly that you should be a loyal citizen to the good old U. S. Rolly Montgomery won the oration and Georgia Koons the discussion, but they earned it, for "there sure was competition."

The quartette sang, merely for practice, as they had no competitors. Nevertheless they would have forced any rival to the utmost to win from them, for the quartette kept us in the running in the two following contests.

AT CORUNNA

The following are the delegates we sent to Corunna:

|                        |            |
|------------------------|------------|
| Herman Kaysen .....    | Piano Solo |
| Roxie Liddy .....      | Reading    |
| Jo Wilson .....        | Vocal Solo |
| Rolly Montgomery ..... | Oration    |
| Georgia Koons .....    | Discussion |
| Quartette              |            |

Marjorie Knoder, Roxie Liddy, Edith Kirchner, Leota Wolfe

The quartette was the only winner of first place, but the representatives did fine and we did not have a third place to our discredit. Our material shows that we will be right there next year, so look out!

AT AUBURN

The next Friday evening our girls journeyed to Auburn to compete in the county contest with Garrett and St. Joe. They did splendidly but only won second place.

Although our school did not show up so well in the contests, we feel that the benefits that the contestants derived from their work more than repaid them for their efforts—and after all, if they are satisfied—we are also.

—HARRY WILSON.

THE LECTURE COURSE

After the splendid success of the Lecture Course last year the seniors of this year endeavored to even surpass their mark. Four numbers were obtained from the Dennis Lyceum Bureau, all new to our community and composed of wonderful talent.

The first number of the course was presented on December sixth, with a splendid lecture by Dr. C. C. Mitchell, a well known and capable talker. His delivery consisted of non-partial politics and also statistics and comparisons of our country with others; showing us what a great country we live in and our comparative prosperity and happiness.

On January fourteenth, Pietro La Verdi, a well known chalk-talkers, humorist, and impersonator, presented to us some remarkable talent. He held his audience in a continual laughter and awe of his work and ability. This number was enjoyed by all and proved to be one of the best numbers.

A wonderful musical number by the Priscella Entertainers was offered on March twenty-fourth. This company consisted of two talented young ladies, Miss Esther Davis, a reader, soprano, and pianist; and Miss Katherine Marlowe, the singer and harpist. This combination of talent proved to be a success and everyone was pleased by the originality of their program.

As the Comet goes to press before April fourth, when our next number is given, I can give you no account of their entertainment, but I can assure you that you can depend on the Dennis Lyceum Bureau for a good number. At this time the Marimbo singers will give their number. This company is composed of three gentlemen singers and marimbo-phone players, of good ability.

The talent for the numbers of the Lecture Course for next year will be F. W. Seymour, magician; The Beverly Concert Party; Harry C. Kleckner, lecturer; and The Old Kentucky Jubilee Quartette. We wish the Class of '25 much success in their efforts in presenting these numbers to our community.

We, as members of the Ashley High School, endeavor to give this community something worth while each year by offering these Lecture Courses and we want you to appreciate our efforts as we appreciate your support which has been so liberal, and we hope that this good work may continue.

—CLAUDE KAYSEN, JR.

FRESHMAN RECEPTION

On September fourteenth a reception for the Freshmen, faculty and other new students was held at the school house.

The program was opened by a piano solo by Gladys Johnson. Following this Jo Wilson sang a solo. Talks were given by Miss Taylor, Mr. Frederick, and Mr. Miller.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games. At a later hour a dainty lunch of sandwiches, ice cream, and cake was served by the eighth grade girls.

Everyone declared the party a great success.

PUNCH PARTY

The Freshman girls, under the direction of Miss Redick, entertained the other high school girls and faculty to a punch party on October ninth.

Games were played and every one enjoyed the time, declaring that the dainty lunch and punch was not the least of the party.

THE PARENT-TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

The Ashley Parent-Teachers Association was first organized in the year 1916 when Mr. Scott Forney was superintendent of the school, with Mr. Ed Brance as president. After a few years they disorganized and the present association was organized in the year 1920 under Mr. B. A. Sweigart as superintendent, with Mrs. Flora Stuck as president. Since that time we have had a very successful organization, with a membership in the Indiana Parent-Teachers Association.

The purpose of the organization is to bring the home and school, or the community and school into a closer relationship and understanding. In this way we give the child the benefit of our co-operation, for as has been so fittingly said, the hyphen in the Parent-Teacher represents the child.

—MRS. DESSA KOONS, President.

We miss Miss Taylor very much.

Tuesday 8th—

Isn't it queer? The Freshmen are not half so green as they were.

Friday 11th—

Our annual school exhibit is held in the Community Hall.

Thursday 24th—

This is the week when the seniors learn their fate! Also, the grades will get their summer vacation.

MAY

Thursday 1st—

The baseball days are here.

Sunday 11th—

Baccalaureate services.

Monday 12th—

Juniors, don't forget that Senior reception.

Tuesday 13th—

Do the seniors look happy? I'll say they don't.

Wednesday 14th—

Let those poor seniors sleep, it's the last chance they'll ever have to sleep in High School.

Notice that speculative look in those seniors' eyes? They are wondering what they'll get in return for their invitations and pictures. Notice the harassed look in the Juniors' eyes? They are wondering just how much a teacher and a senior really eat.

Thursday 15th—

The seniors receive their diplomas. Today is Commencement!

Friday 16th—

Seniors get a good meal. Junior-Senior Banquet! Great success.

Saturday 17th—

High school picnic.

Sunday 18th—

The noble seniors leave Old Ashley High forever. What'll they do without us?

Frederick, in Physics class: "If anything goes wrong in this experiment we'll all be blown sky high, so step a little closer so that you may follow me."

* * *

Teacher (to boy he was holding by the collar): "I believe Satan himself has got hold of you."

Boy (struggling to get free): "I believe that myself."

* * *

Mr. Cox (in arithmetic): "If a farmer sold one thousand two-hundred and twenty-eight bushels of wheat at seventy cents what would he get?"

Rex Oberlin: "An automobile."

* * *

Miss Taylor (in English): "How would you punctuate the sentence: The five dollar bill flew around the corner?"

Aldis Stuck: "I believe I'd make a dash after it."

* * *

Fond father to his son George: "I wish you wouldn't go with that girl, she has the reputation of being wild."

George Urey (in surprise): "Oh! no father, she isn't wild, I can get quite close to her."

* * *

Teacher to Claude Kaysen: "Claude, do take that gum out of your mouth and put your feet in."

* * *

Miss Taylor in English to Harry Wilson: "Who did Edgar Allen Poe marry?"

Harry: "I don't know, he married a woman, I guess."

* * *

Georgia Koons in civics, talking about the Dept. of Agri.: "What do they have alligator farms for?"

Willa Kunderd: "To make pocket books out of."

* * *

Most people who think they are hard boiled are really only half baked.

* * *

Most people who don't get the right pictures of things are in the wrong frame of mind.

LOCAL COLOR

He put his arm around her waist,
The color left her cheek,
And on the lapel of his coat,
It stayed for about a week.

* * *

Marjorie Knoder: "I was just reading about the Spaniard going two thousand miles on a galleon."

Roxie Liddy: "Oh! Well you can't believe all they tell you about these new fangled cars."

* * *

Student waiter: "What can I do for you, sir?"

Customer: "I want a dish of prunes."

Student waiter: "Stewed?"

Customer: "None of your business."

* * *

The school teacher has found her class of boys reluctant in their writing of English compositions. At last the teacher conceived a great idea to stimulate their interest—to write an account of a ball game. It seemed that she was successful. With one exception, the boys threw themselves at the task and developed youthful masterpieces. The backward one chewed reluctantly at his pen and was then struck by a burst of genius. When the teacher opened his paper, it read: "Rain—no game."

* * *

Mr. Cox to Elbert Sharitt, who was tardy: "Why are you so late?"

Elbert: "Well, I saw a sign down the road."

Mr. Cox: "Well, what does the sign have to do with your being late?"

Elbert: "The sign said, 'School ahead! Go slow.'"

* * *

Mother: "Johnny, will you be quiet for a bit?"

Johnny: "I will for two bits."

* * *

Teacher: "So you were born on Thanksgiving day."

Johnie: "Yes ma'm."

Teacher: "Then your parents have something to be thankful for."

Johnie: "Yes, they say they're thankful I aint twins."

"Mr. Deputy, I want you to find a government post for my boy."

"Is he intelligent?"

"If he were I shouldn't be worrying you for a government job. I could use him in my own business."

* * *

An old negro with an aged mule was hauling cotton to the clothing mills. As he came along the road he saw a sign which read "Speed limit 15 miles per hour." He scratched his head and hit his mule saying, "By Golly, Moses, I don't believe we can make it."

* * *

Old McFadd: "Do you collect anything?"

Young Smart: "I collect my thoughts occasionally."

Old McFadd: "The specimens you get are undoubtedly rare."

* * *

Willie was under orders never to go swimming and mother meant to see that he obeyed. So one day she became suspicious.

"Willie, your clothes are wet," she said. "You have been in the water again."

"Yes, mother. I went in to save Charlie Jones."

"My noble darling! Did you jump in after him?"

"No, mother. I jumped in first so as to be there when he fell in."

* * *

Can you remember when—

Willie K. wasn't boss of every high school party?

Aldis S. didn't have his hair combed?

Claude K. knew anything about the English lesson?

Harry W. wasn't "cutting up" in school?

Everett P. wasn't eating candy in school time?

The assembly room clock ran the last time?

Clark McClish wasn't fussing with his watch?

Schoolmaster: "Jones, spell 'weather'."

Schoolmaster: "Well that's the worst spell of weather we've had for some time!"

* * *

Teacher (to pupil): "Do you know the name of Jupiter's wife, Leon?"

Leon (hesitating): "No I don't know."

Teacher: "Juno."

Leon: "No, I don't know."

* * *

LOGICAL

Amo, amas, I had a lass,

I thought she was a wonder.

Amo, amat, now none of that

For I'm as broke as thunder.

* * *

She: "John, Dear, do you love me like you used to?"

He: "Yes, honey, why do you ask?"

She: "Then why don't your chest go up and down like the man in the movies?"

* * *

AIN'T IT SO?

Two dazzling eyes

With baby stare

A little smile

And cute bobbed hair.

Two dancing feet

A shoulder sway

A silly laugh

A vamping way.

A crowd of boys,

A social whirl,

And there you are—

The modern girl.

* * *

Clark M.: "What does a lawyer do when he dies?"

Everett Penick: "I dunno, what does he do?"

Clark McClish: "He lies still."

NIGHT

When comes the night of dreaming
And I go courting Rose,
I wished we lived in Grenland,
And we were Eskimos.

Before I know this evening
Has vanished like a song,

Where nights are six months long.

"Where is Davey?" roared the boss. "Davey, — Davey, — Davey!" he yelled down the basement stairs, through the corridor, and up the elevator shaft. Davey, the office boy, could not be found.

The boss was frantic. He wanted some papers sent over to Caldwell who was catching the Century. About the time his rage had reached fever heat, in walked Davey.

"Where have you been?" fumed the boss.

"Where have I been?" replied the boy, knowingly. "Why, I've been in conference."

A teacher had been trying to impress upon the minds of her pupils the great sin of telling falsehoods, but one little girl persisted in telling little white lies. The teacher to make an impression on her said, "Mary, do you know what happened to Ananias?"

Mary: "Yes, mum, he was hit by a truck and I saw him carried into a corner drug store.

He: "I wish I could reverse the alphabet."

She: "Why?"

He: "I'd put U and I closer together."
